INTRODUCTION

Background

Madripoor is a wealthy and lawless island nation in the South China Sea, located south of Singapore. Originally a pirate haven, it has evolved into a major hub for black-market trade, high-stakes finance, and international crime, while maintaining a thin veneer of legitimacy as a global business capital. Unlike its well-regulated neighbor Singapore, Madripoor remains a free-for-all, where power is dictated by wealth and brute force.

The island is divided into Hightown, a glittering metropolis of luxury, corporate elites, and old money, and Lowtown, a slum where crime lords, mercenaries, and fugitives operate unchecked. Extradition is not recognized, making Madripoor a favored hideout for criminals, rogue scientists, and warlords.

Throughout its history, Madripoor has seen control shift between warlords, crime bosses, and external forces like HYDRA, S.H.I.E.L.D., and the Hand. Its current power structure is largely dominated by Tyger Tiger, the island's de facto ruler, though underground forces such as Homines Verendi, the Hand, and various Triads continue to battle for dominance.

GEOGRAPHY

Location

Located between the Andaman Sea and the Java Sea, Madripoor sits between Singapore and Indonesia.

Geographic Coordinates

1° 13' N, 103° 54' E

Area

Total: ~ 300 square kilometers

Coastline

Heavily developed deepwater ports, allowing for unrestricted shipping and smuggling.

Climate

Tropical, with high humidity and monsoon seasons bringing heavy rainfall.

Terrain

A mix of urban sprawl, slums, and towering skyscrapers. Hightown sits on elevated land, offering luxury and security, while Lowtown is a dense maze of narrow alleys and markets.

De facto corporate-oligarchic autocracy, ruled by crime bosses, powerful financiers, and the Power Broker. Amongst these crime lords is General Nguyen Ngoc Coy, a former South Vietnamese general and rival of another crime lord Tyger Tiger.

Capital

Madripoor (the only major urban center, encompassing both Hightown and Lowtown).

Legal System

A mix of bribery, corporate rule, and private security enforcement. The Madripoor Police Force (MPF) exists, but is widely seen as ineffective and corrupt.

ECONOMY

Economic Overview

A major hub for money laundering, black-market trade, and off-the-books financial transactions. While it lacks formal banking regulations, it attracts major corporations and criminal enterprises alike due to its laissez-faire policies.

Main Industries

- Arms dealing
- High-end luxury goods (both legal and stolen)
- Bioengineering and cybernetics
- Smuggling and trafficking
- Private security and mercenary services

Currency

Madripoorian Dolla (MAD), though most transactions are done in USD, gold, cryptocurrency, or batering.

INFRASTRUCTURE

Airports

- One major airstrip, primarily used for private jets, smuggling, and covert operations.
- No major commercial airline operates here officially, but chartered flights are common.

Seaports

- One of the busiest (and least regulated) ports in the world.
- A crucial transit point for smuggled goods, stolen technology, and fugitive transport.

Roadways

- Hightown: Modern, well-maintained infrastructure.
- Lowtown: Crowded, chaotic, and barely passable in some areas.

Technology & Communications

- No government oversight—full access to dark web, offshore accounts, and cybercrime networks.
- Hacking and information warfare are a booming underground industry.

MILITARY & SECURITY

Law Enforcement

- The Madripoor Royal Police (MRP) exists but is corrupt and rarely enforces laws unless bribed.
- Most security is privately contracted by criminal organizations or corporations.

Armed Forces

- No official military, but numerous private security firms act as de facto armies.
- Hightown: Guarded by high-tech private militias and hired enforcers.
- Lowtown: Mercenaries, bounty hunters, and vigilantes enforce their own rules.

SOCIETY & CULTURE

Population

Estimated 1.5 million, including permanent residents and transient criminals, refugees, and wealthy elites.

Languages

English is widely spoken due to international influence, alongside Mandarin, Malay, and various dialects.

Religions

A mix of regional religions, though crime and wealth supersede faith as dominant forces.

Social Divide

- Hightown: Home to billionaires, warlords, and corporate elites. Skyscrapers, high-tech defenses, and luxury beyond imagination.
- Lowtown: A lawless, cyberpunk nightmare—street gangs, black markets, and cutthroat survival.

POINTS OF INTEREST

- Hightown: A glittering, cyberpunk-style metropolis filled with neon lights, casinos, and high-end business centers.
- Lowtown: A crime-ridden slum where anything—including human lives—is for sale.
- Madripoor Trade Center: The central hub for illicit international finance and high-risk investments.
- Brass Monkey Saloon: A key meeting point for criminals, spies, and mercenaries.
- Princess Bar: Once co-owned by Wolverine, this notorious smuggling hub now doubles as a hotel.
- Sovereign Hotel: A lavish safehouse for fugitives and power players.
- Reavers Universal Robotics: A factory producing cybernetic enforcers for various factions.

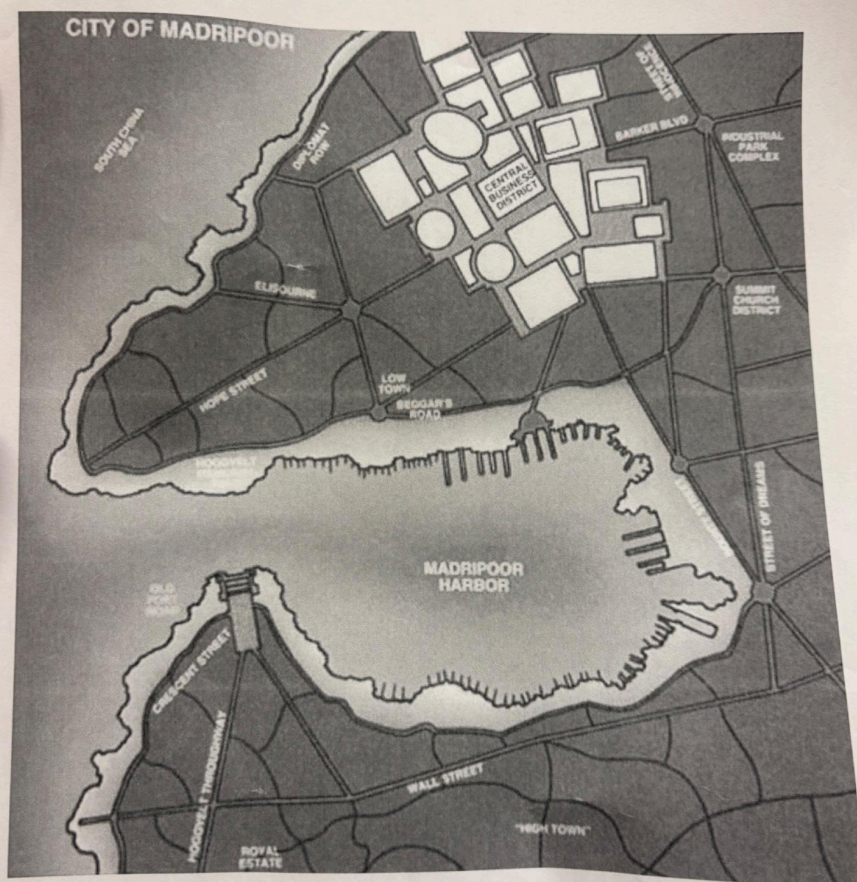

- Jade Dragon Triad's Factory: A major front for weapons and counterfeit goods.
- Empty Quarter: A mysterious, shifting sector rumored to be connected to the Negative Zone.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

- No formal diplomatic recognition from world governments.
- Neutral ground for arms deals, corporate espionage, and terrorist funding.
- A frequent battleground for HYDRA, S.H.I.E.L.D., and mutant factions.

KNOWN RESIDENTS & FIGURES OF POWER

- Tyger Tiger (Jessen Hoan) - De facto ruler of Madripoor, trying to maintain control.
- Homines Verendi (formerly the Hellfire Club) - A group of ruthless young masterminds controlling criminal operations.
- The Hand & HYDRA - Occasional power players seeking control through supernatural means.
- Viper (Madame Hydra) - A past ruler, still influential in the shadows.
- Daken (Wolverine's son, former ruler) - Briefly took over Madripoor, leaving chaos in his wake.
- Wolverine ("Patch") - Former co-owner of the Princess Bar, a legend in Madripoor.
- Mystique - Attempted to turn the island into a mutant stronghold.
- Kimura - Current crime lord and human trafficker, rival to Tyger Tiger.

George Burdell: Your Asylum Plans!

Thank you for choosing Madripoor Marina. Here are your plans to emigrate to Madripoor. Remember they are non refundable — very non refundable.

Your end location is Lowtown, Madripoor. You will first be flying to Singapore via Qatar. Once you arrive, a local contact will arrange passage for you on a cargo vessel. The ship's captain doesn't ask questions; neither should you. Upon arrival, you will be handed off to a fixer who will escort you through the city's back alleys to avoid unwanted attention. You may need to bribe your way to survive.

Your ticket is under the name Dr. Leo Voss. Look at <https://topnotchfakes.bargains/> for information to obtain your fake identification documents. Once in Madripoor, look for a man wearing a red silk jacket and mirrored sunglasses at the Brass Monkey Saloon. He will refer to you as "Hugo." Follow his lead. He will bring you to your new residence: a modest apartment on Dream Street.

From now on, you will be known as a discreet broker of rare and valuable items. Keep your head down, don't ask about the neighbors, and never speak ill of the Power Broker. The locals know nothing of your past, and it's best to keep it that way. In 5-10 years, you may have a chance to leave, but only if you find a way to secure passage out.

Inside this box, you will find a complimentary guide to survival in Madripoor and hush money, provided free of charge.

Also remember to return this to the box and lock it up after taking a picture of its contents.

Message from HQ:

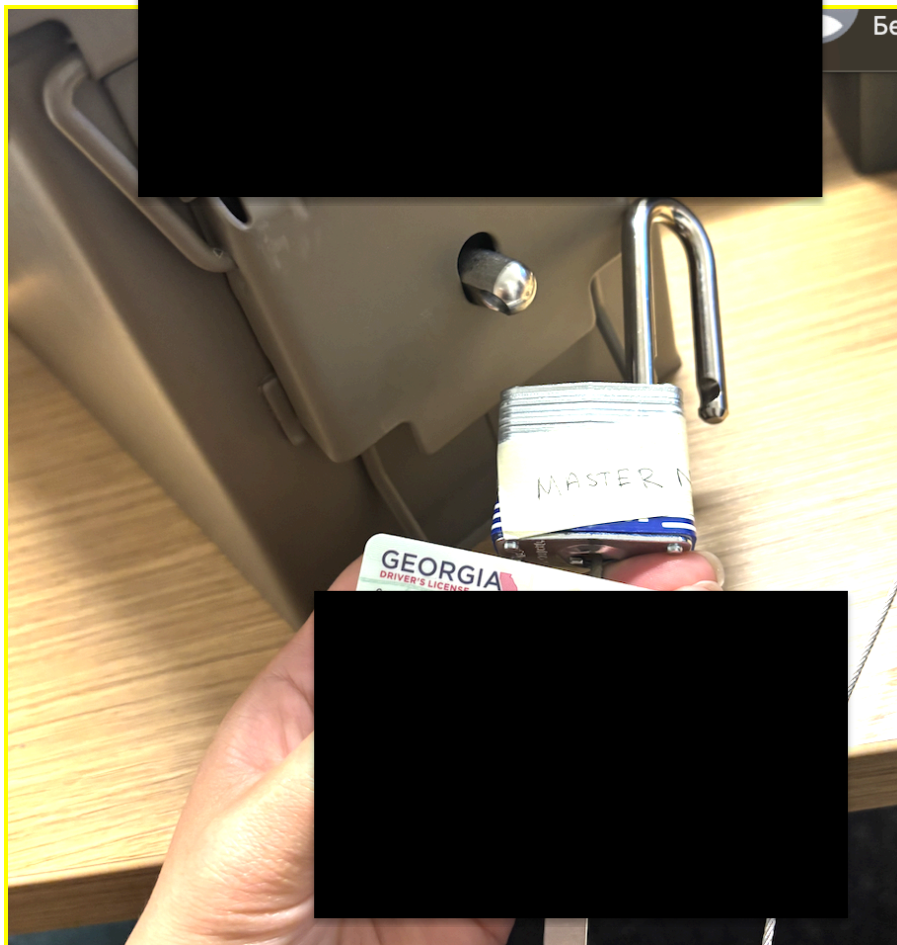

It seems like we may be able to bring down some of these larger crime rings if we keep getting these kinds of breakthroughs. I recommend that you proceed, but be careful: these websites have been known to go down and totally rebase when they get caught. If we figure out how they get the information out, we can catch many criminals.

You are cleared to investigate the website.

Friend of George

Because we had access to BuzzBuzzGo via 3Project

Target Website

Motivated by the success of DuckDuckGo, a group of freshmen CS majors decided to launch a startup named BuzzBuzzGo, with its first product being a web search engine exclusively for the Yellow Jackets. However, their investors are nervous about security problems. Unlike the freshmen who developed the site, you took CS 3235, so the investors have hired you to perform a security evaluation before it goes live.

Welcome, Agents Emenike and Talantbekova. What have you found?
